Welcome to Spilled Ink! A writing group dedicated to the creative development of local writers. Whether you are an aspiring poet, experienced novelist, or looking to experiment in a new artform, our writing group offers a welcoming space for writers of all genres, ages, and experience levels. On a biweekly basis, we will meet to write and provide feedback on our current projects. No registration is required, drop-in workshop.

ARTIST BIO: Blaine Thornton is a non-binary community-based writer from Sudbury, Ontario. Their book, Here's To Letting Go, was awarded the 2023 OCAD U Medal for Creative Writing. They are interested in how writing can be used as a tool for self-healing and creating vibrant artistic spaces for people to experiment in. During their degree, Blaine was the Managing Editor for the first edition of Pulse Literary Journal, and co-host of Friday Night on the Mic. They facilitate workshops surrounding how writing can be used to heal.
